

Dyson Award-Winning SafetyNet Prevents Overfishing by Guiding Small Fish to Freedom with LED Lights

Source: inhabitat.com

Published: November 12, 2012

by Inhabitat Staff

Royal College of Arts graduate Dan Watson has developed a brilliant sustainable fishing net with luminous exit portals that allow endangered and young fish to escape so that they can fully mature. Watson calls his design the SafetyNet, and the project was recently awarded with £10,000 for taking first place in the 2012 James Dyson Awards.

